Patriotic Summons—Gov. Dwight H. Green has proclaimed Sunday, August 23, as "Illinois National Day" which will be commemorated by a huge pageant to be held in the afternoon at Soldier Field under the auspices of the Foreign Language Division of the Illinois State Council of Defense.

Key Figures in Jewish Education Drive—The Board of Jewish Education, in conformity with its agreement with the Jewish Charities of Chicago, will conduct a campaign during the months of September, October and November for the necessary funds to carry on its work. Believing that education is linked with the struggle for the perpetuation of democracy, Judge Julius H. Miner of the Circuit Court of Cook County and long prominent in civic and patriotic activities, has accepted the chairmanship of the drive, it was announced this week at a special meeting of the directors of the Board of Jewish Education by Prof. Louis Gottschalk, president of the Board, and chairman of the Department of History at the University of Chicago. "We are blessed," says Judge Miner, "with constitutionally guaranteed rights to live, learn and worship as free men and women. We shall teach our children how to do so nobly." Left to right: Dr. Leo L. Honor, executive director, Board of Jewish Education; Judge H. M. Fisher, Benj. R. Harris and Judge Miner.

Victim of Axis Sluggers — Waldo Frank, noted Jewish-American author, now on a lecture tour of South America, had his skull fractured in Buenos Aires by six assailants. In a signed statement he charged that the attack was made by "pro-totalitarian elements incited by the Nazi-Fascist press."

Close of a Notable Career—Mrs. Seraphine E. Pisko, widely known honorary secretary of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver and active in philanthropy and women's affairs for over 50 years, died July 27 after a long illness. She was 81 years old.

Palestine "U.S.O." Provides for Desert Fighters of United Nations

"How about a free sightseeing trip to Jerusalem?" hostess asks United Nations fighting man at Services Club in Tel Aviv (above). Centers like this are dotted through Palestine, maintained with aid of United Palestine Appeal, whose funds, together with those of Joint Distribution Committee and National Refugee Service, come from nationwide campaign of United Jewish Appeal. American boys now enjoy this hospitality together with British, Fighting French, Polish, Czech, Yugoslav, Dutch, Belgian, as well as Palestinian Jewish troops. At left, a songfest in one of the service clubs.

Orphanage Leader—Fred Lazarus was re-elected president of Bellefaire, Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home, at the recent annual meeting. William Sultan and I. S. Anoff, of Chicago, continue as vice-president and exec. committee vice-chairman, respectively.

New Child-Care Work—Miss Florence Goldman, newly-appointed Bellefaire (Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home) Regional Supervisor, will make her initial trip into the State of Indiana, August 7, with a view to giving impetus to the enlarged child-care service of the seventy-four-year-old institution.

New Wisconsin University Hillel Director—Rabbi Theodore H. Gordon, director of the Hillel Foundation at the University of California since 1940, is now at the University of Wisconsin, succeeding Rabbi Max Kadushin, resigned after 11 years to become principal of the N. Y. Hebrew High School.

Japan's Dream of World Empire: "The Tanaka Memorial." Edited with an introduction by Carl Crow. Harper & Brothers, New York City.....$1.25

There is a popular saying that the writing of songs for a country is as necessary as the writing of its laws. They provide the national spirit and loyalty to strengthen its morale. Following this principle, Zionist leaders have just issued a fine collection of some two hundred songs which deal with the spirit of Palestine and Zionism. The range of subjects includes the land and the people, Jewish festivals and holidays.

These songs have been compiled in a most artistic book by Harry Cooper-Smith. An English rendition of each song has been prepared by Deborah Pessin and the clever illustrations are from the pen of Margot Tomes. Music lovers and Zionist advocates will enthusiastically welcome this new book.

Many co-religionists will unconsciously think of the so-called "Protocols of Zion" when they read the "Tanaka Memorial." Both treat of world conquest and universal domination. The former is a deliberate falsehood, kept alive by anti-Semitic propaganda; the latter is historically true but was suppressed for years by Japanese cleverness. The "Protocols of Zion" relate the fictional secret meeting of international Jewish bankers for world control through financial manipulation. The "Tanaka Memorial" is the statement of an actual meeting in Mukden from June 27 to July 7, 1927, of Japanese military and civil officers.

"Japan's Dream of World Empire" is a book that every American who wishes to grasp Japanese psychology should read. Directly after the historic gathering in Mukden, Baron Tanaka carried a report of the deliberations to his Emperor in Japan and this report has since been called the "Tanaka Memorial." "There has not been any official act of Japan in China in the past ten years which has not followed the lines laid out in this memorial" (P 22). Today, a military clique dominates Japan and its aim is to rule the entire world. In that ambitious drive for power, Formosa and Korea were first conquered. Five years ago, the invasion of China began. Pearl Harbor was another planned step in that gigantic dream. Our Western mind can scarcely believe these facts but our experiences since December 7 leaves no room for doubt.

For too many years, Americans have measured the Japanese viewpoint by the gentle Nipponese folks we pass on the street. This book furnishes the facts and the history of Japanese ambition and thus becomes an excellent guide to those who wish to know the actual background on one front of this world war.

Washington (JTA)—Earl G. Harison, newly-appointed Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, has pledged that he will "do everything possible" to facilitate the naturalization of aliens serving in the armed forces of the United States. The pledge was given in a letter replying to a query by a loyal alien concerning a recent modification by the War Department of the naturalization regulations for alien soldiers, it was disclosed here this week.

Stockholm (JTA) — One hundred Belgian Jews who had been confined in the St. Giles prison in Brussels on charges of "sabotage," have been deported from Belgium to Poland or occupied Russia, according to information reaching here this week.

New York (JTA)—EMICA, the organization set up by the Jewish Colonization Association and the Trust Fund of New York, in connection with settling refugees in Palestine, will place twenty families at Kfar Warburg, a new settlement which has been established in Palestine since the outbreak of the war, it was announced here this week. They will join 47 families who have already been settled at the colony which is named after the late Felix Warburg. Ninety-nine families are now living on the other EMICA colony, Beer Tuviah, which is located nearby.

London (JPS) — Herr Zwiack, eighty-year-old President of the Jewish Kehilla of Bruenn, Bohemia, has been deported to the concentration camp for Jews at the Theresenstadt ghetto, it is learned here.

Reports reaching here state that 700 German women and 1,000 children arrived in the one city of Wloclawek, Poland, to be placed in the homes of Jews, who were ordered out of the city and their household belongings confiscated.

PLAIN TALK

"Last Victory"
By AL SEGAL

There was trouble in hell and the devil was in conference. As far back as anybody in hell could remember things always had run smoothly there before this. Even in times of flux elsewhere in the universe, the devil always had had a firm grip on the affairs of his dominion.

There had been occasions when even the authority of God was challenged by impudent little men who set themselves up on the earth and shook their fists at the firmament. These were comic manifestations in the sight of God.

He went about His work. He kept the stars in their courses, busied Himself with the seasons, compounded the fragrance of the roses, as He always had. In due time He caused impudent men to be reduced to whence they came. Sometime later He might see a grain of infinitesimal dust blowing in the wind. He knew what it was: It was the dust of an impudent man who had stood one day shaking his fist at the firmament. Then God laughed.

But no one ever had thought of challenging the authority of the devil. Nobody ever had wanted to take over hell. Even Hitler in the time he was marching over the earth, trampling upon the children, slaying mercy and loving-kindness until he had come almost to the right bastions of heaven itself, even in that time Hitler made no threats against the devil's hell.

Hell was not in the blue-print of "Mein Kampf." Hitler was content to make his own hell on earth and let the devil's alone. He had quite well succeeded, too. The corpses he had made had lain in mountainous heaps. The moans of the starving had been carried on all the winds around the earth. Immense graves contained the bones of multitudes who had been made to die for no offenses of their own.

Worse off were those he allowed to live and to suffer life in the shadow of doom. Their lives were lived by the hour; no righteous man in his dominions knew but that before the next hour struck he would be called to perish for having fed the starving, or for being suspected of harboring ideas of freedom, or for being a Jew.

The devil had looked at all this with admiration not unmixed with envy... "Hitler," he confessed, "is pretty good, too"... Yet, at that time, he could have no fear of Hitler rising up to be a rival for the dictatorship of hell. The devil felt secure in his own empire.

Hitler, he said, still had plenty to do on the earth: There was still no little loving-kindness to be murdered on the earth, still much faith to be betrayed. There were left some flickering lights to be extinguished to make a totalitarian darkness. As long as there was still so much to be done to make hell complete on the earth, the devil could feel safe from Hitler.

Besides, the devil knew history: He had seen all the iniquitous conquerors fall into his own hell eventually. He laughed and whimsically took up knitting a thick woolen sweater for Hitler in hell.

But now the devil was afraid. History had fulfilled its ancient promise of ultimate defeat for the arrogance of conquerors. That day, all over the world, people were dancing on the streets for the victory and the happy end of the bitter years.

Their eyes were bright with a gorgeous vision of a good, new world. Yes, tomorrow they must start to build it. Today they must dance but tomorrow they would start to build the good, new world on the mountain top toward the sunlight.

Hitler and all his hierarchy had been captured and imprisoned. It was not by the hands of their foreign enemies that they were taken. Their own people had imprisoned them and were holding them against the hour of judgment.

They were accused of treason to the people of Germany whose youth they had devastated on the battlefields; treason to mankind; treason to civilization and to all the decencies that man had established in the upward ages away from the savage.

The people danced today but tomorrow they would trample out the vintage where the grapes of wrath were stored. Tomorrow would be the day of judgment for the traitors; tomorrow the retribution which, according to the promise, must fall upon the transgressors. Tomorrow they would pay for all the Lidices, for the innocent dead cut down like the grass. Tomorrow the hangings.

"Tomorrow," the devil said, "they will be coming to hell in one big crowd," and he was afraid. He was in conference on the crisis that was about to fall on hell.

"So many of them coming—almost the whole Nazi party," the devil worried. He was mindful of their ruthless march over the earth... the way they had taken over one country and another until they had almost the whole world... the efficient way they had managed hell on earth... the way they had uprooted governments and set up their own authority in many lands... the way they had driven established rulers into exile... Now they were coming to hell in a body. The devil trembled for his authority in hell... "They'll be here in 24 hours"... He ordered guards set all over hell.

The hanged Nazis arrived in hell on a thunderous march of goose-steps. They pushed the devil's guards out of the way.

"But, gentlemen," the devil protested. Hitler's bodyguard muscled the devil aside... "But, gentlemen"... Hitler himself took his seat on the Satanic throne, flanked by Goering and Goebbels, Himmler and Streicher... "But, gentlemen..." the devil kept protesting.

Hitler gave out a brief guttural proclamation: From this hour hell was a Nazi dominion. He himself would be the fuehrer in hell as he had been on earth. He was certain the New Order would prosper in hell. The subversive forces of democracy that had defeated the New Order on the earth could not prevail in this subterranean depths... "Lebensraum!" he shouted. A thunder of "heils" echoed through the sulphurous chambers of hell.

ZIONISTS CHOOSE CONVENTION DELEGATES TO MEET IN N. Y.

August 31, 1942, has been set as the deadline for completing membership enrollment for the purpose of qualifying delegates to the 45th Annual Convention of the Zionist Organization of America, which will convene in a four day session from October 14 through October 18 in the Hotel New Yorker, New York City, the national headquarters of the organization announced from Washington, D. C.

Calling upon the officers of all Zionist districts and regions to utilize the month of August for an intensified membership activity, Simon Shetzer, executive director of the Z. O. A., declared that all indications point to the Z. O. A. coming to the convention with the largest membership on record.

It is announced that some of the convention sessions will be held jointly with Hadassah, which will be meeting at the same time in New York City. The main proceedings, which will deal with vital problems affecting the post-war status of Palestine and the future of the Zionist movement in this country, will be presided over by Judge Louis E. Levinthal of Philadelphia, president of the Z. O. A.

Zionist headquarters in Chicago are located at 220 South State Street.

The Ingredients of Victory

The second front in Europe or wherever else it could do the most good would be opened at once if the prevalent attitude, officially as well as privately, with regard to so vital a move for all the United Nations, were that of Governor Edison of New Jersey, son of the immortal American inventor, Thomas A. Edison, and former Secretary of the Navy, who expressed himself on this point last week as follows: "I'd like to see a few more John Paul Joneses and a daring take-a-chance attitude to bring aid to China and Russia." The minute such a spirit is brought to bear upon the war situation, and not before, the Axis threat to civilized mankind will be checked and thrown back in Russia and everywhere else and disposed of in short order. There is only one way to win this war, as every other, and to do so quickly and that is to wage it constantly with the audacity demanded by Danton in his impassioned exhortation at the outbreak of the French Revolution. The very risk involved in embarking upon a second front at this time is the best reason in the world for going about it in earnest, preparing it with the greatest speed as well as thoroughness and making an actual start in that direction.

The prime need of this country and the rest of the United Nations now is leadership, military and otherwise, of the most daring character. Difficulties cannot be permitted to stand in the way of proceeding at this critical juncture as Farragut did when he issued the order that has made his name live forever, "Damn The Torpedoes! Go Ahead!" The counterpart today, industrially, of the valiant and victorious American Admiral of our own Civil War is Henry J. Kaiser, hailed far and wide as "America's master shipbuilder," whose breath-taking war effort should serve as an inspiration for all others, particularly those whose job it is to get the second front going. Telling of the feasibility of turning out the 70-ton Glenn L. Martin flying boat Mars at the rate of 5,000 a year, a United Press dispatch from Portland, Oregon, brought to the attention of all on the front page of the "Chicago Sun," July 20, reveals: "Such planes, Kaiser said, could each carry a hundred men, completely equipped.

"Five thousand of them could land 500,000 equipped men in England in a single day. And the next day they could fly over again with 70,000 tons of fresh milk, beefsteaks, sugar—and bombs. No submarine could shoot them down', he said.

"With the aid of Martin and the aviation industry in general', he added, 'and with the equipment already in place in the shipyards, we can have the assembly line functioning in six months or less. We can be at maximum production in 10 months or less.

"And when that maximum production comes, the position of our enemies will be hopeless. We will be able to put down a vast army, anywhere in the world, within a single week. We will be free once and for all of the fear of having our armies cut off in some place distant from our own shores. There will be no distant places. The whole world will be our front yard. And our enemies will be beaten to their knees.'"

In a radio address last Sunday over the Columbia network and also at the "Win the War" rally in Grant Park, sponsored by the Chicago Industrial Union Council, and with 8,000 in attendance, R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America, claimed to be the biggest labor union in the United States, likewise pointed the way to certain victory by opening a second front now and removing obstacles in the way of maximum American war production, saying: "We do not need to approve of Communism to realize that if Russia is knocked out of the war it will mean the loss of hundreds of thousands of additional American lives before Hitler and Japan are defeated.

"In sections of the armed forces and of industry, there is still a short-sighted 'can't-be-done' attitude. Labor demands that these hands so enmeshed in red tape and outmoded traditions be removed from our defense setup.

"The proposals of Henry Kaiser for development of air transports, the emphasis of Maj. de Seversky on development of a separate air force should not be kicked around merely because they will mean unemployment for some admirals or generals, or because they will disturb the vested interests of some industries."

Together with the foregoing considerations, there must be proper realization, as George S. Messersmith, United States Ambassador to Mexico, told the International Women's Club in Mexico City a few weeks ago, of the implications of an Axis victory for "every single one of us" and, in consequence, "such a fervor and such a spirit among all the peoples of the world as that which is now being shown by those heroic men who are struggling at the fronts," notably in Russia and China, and the women, too, it must not be forgotten, whether as civilians or in the armed forces of those and other countries whose spirit of resistance to subjugation and enslavement by the Axis cannot be broken.

"It is only when we have that full realization," the American envoy to Mexico earnestly pleaded on the basis of his experiences in Germany where he was formerly stationed, "that we shall have all the power which is necessary to destroy the monsters aiming to devour us. Our faith alone will not save us. If we depend only on our faith and upon the rightness of right as our weapon and as our defense, the monster will laugh in our face and slay us.

"It is time for us to awake, not only as nations and as governments but as individuals. While the sinking of ships in our waters has brought the war and its real significance to some of us more closely, our attitude is still one of too great complacency.

"From the casual spectator whose interest is so largely confined to reading about the war in our daily paper or listening in over the radio as if these were events which concern others and not ourselves, we must come to have the feeling that every battle that is fought for freedom these days, whether it is in the air, on the land or on the seas, is our battle and that we shall not be doing our part, which is essential to the victory, until every sacrifice of blood and toil and treasure is made by us as it is by those valiantly combating the enemy today.

"We are stronger than the enemy, but shall only defeat the enemy if every one of us puts forth the maximum effort and is prepared for the maximum sacrifice."

The course of action that must be insisted upon in every phase of the war effort — political, military, industrial and civilian — is that which provides assurance that victory will not be deferred and thereby possibly imperiled.

He Teaches Toughness to Soldiers

By PAUL B. GREENE

THE LIFE of a guerrilla fighter is exhausting — physically, mentally and nervously — lonely, perilous, hard in every way. The guerrilla must sometimes work in isolation, must lurk in the shadows and take terrifying risks in broad daylight."

That is how Bert "Yank" Levy, world's foremost expert on guerrilla fighting, defines his craft, a skill which has saved Yugoslavia for the United Nations — only because of the 250,000 trained, savage guerrilla warriors; a trade in war which has made the Russian guerrillas the most feared battalions in the heroic Red Army; a type of warfare which has made possible resistance to the Nazis in such small lands as Greece and Norway, in such outposts as Crete and Java.

Now that the United States is in this war to the end, with all its resources and all its imagination, guerrilla fighting is being looked upon as a definite means of fighting the strong enemy. And the man who is teaching Americans how to battle the Axis with as few weapons as possible, with as many ingenious devices as the human brain can create, is a 120-pound, black-haired, mustached Jew, born in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1897.

Bert Levy is an outspoken man with clear ideas as to how this war must be fought. He believes that guerrilla bands are needed in America because the Axis is capable of invading South America from Africa and thus could endanger the United States. As a matter of fact, Bert Levy thinks that guerrilla fighters can do more harm than most army units. During the past few weeks he has been lecturing on his specialty at the State Guard School of the 1st Corps Area in Concord, Mass. He has been putting the American boys through a schedule which, in effect, can be described in this fashion: "If you survive, you'll be a guerrilla fighter."

But Yank Levy need not take a back seat for any of the adventurous men throughout the world who are labeled "soldiers of fortune." He has quite a record himself. Here is part of it:

His active life really began in 1916, when he got a job as a stoker in the merchant service. Before that date he just grew up in Cleveland and attended public school and a couple of years' worth of night high school. "My real education," he declares after the fashion of many self-made men, "was in the school of hard knocks." After his sailing—to which he later returned—Yank fought in Palestine and Transjordan during the First World War. Not satisfied with that bit of soldiering, Yank took part in a few revolutions down Mexico way, and then did some gun-running in Nicaragua. In 1937 he decided to join up with the Loyalists in Spain—the first men who fought Hitler in Europe—and quickly became an officer in the machine-gun company of the British Battalion. He was captured by Franco's troops and spent six months in Fascist prisons.

The secret of victory over Hitler is "toughness." That is the slogan now ringing through the declarations of military experts. One man who is being shuffled from one of the United Nations to the other to teach their soldiers "toughness" as guerrilla fighters is Bert "Yank" Levy, an adventurous Jew who has learned in "the school of hard knocks" what he is now teaching trained squads of American troops.

THE EDITOR

Through with "foreign" wars, Levy returned to Great Britain and became an instructor of the British Home Guards. For more than fifteen months he talked and talked about guerrilla fighting. He is proud of the two million Home Guards in Great Britain. He says they will help turn the tide if the Germans should ever decide to invade England.

"England can't be invaded," he said. But the British are cautious. Yank has orders: he has to return to Great Britain after school in the United States ends. He is to give a new series of lectures in guerrilla fighting.

For those to whom guerrilla warfare is new, unknown and mysterious, a perusal of "Guerrilla Warfare," Levy's opus on what some bright adjective-smitten phrase-maker has termed "the art of unmodified murder," is in order. In this slim volume Levy pours out his guts. In it he includes all the knowledge he has picked up of guerrilla warfare. He tells about guerrilla heroes from the days of William The Conqueror to the moment when the Russian guerrillas began to torture and halt the Nazis. It is with considerable military skill that he explains the fighting theories of Lawrence of Arabia, one of the topnotch guerrilla experts, of Liddell Hart and of many more guerrilla men. That Levy is extremely well-read is indicated by his liberal references to books dealing with his particular phase of war. He turns to Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom The Bell Tolls" to point out guerrilla methods in fighting north of Madrid; he refers to Edgar Snow's "Scorched Earth" to stress Chinese guerrilla methods; E. O'Malley's "Army Without Banners" and Denis Rietz' "Commando" are other volumes to which Levy alludes.

Yank Levy lays down the law for guerrilla warriors: "Know your own territory, and know it both by day and by night." He then goes on to tell of the value of knowing each ridge, every factory, every landmark, all the strong buildings, the blind sides of edifices.

"We must get to know people," is another axiom. "People who can be of use to us, who have an intimate knowledge of some aspect or other of our territory. Men and women who can give us useful information now, and who will give us invaluable information if ever the enemy is all around." One more bit of pungent advice is this: all guerrillas should be "sons of guns"—their rifles should always be handy. He repeats an old line: "My rifle is my mother; it feeds me, it houses me, clothes me and protects me."

The fundamentals of guerrilla fighting are caution, invisibility and surprise. They need as their handmaids both initiative and obedience. With a startling comeback, Yank brushed aside courage. "Courage is the commonest of qualities," he says. "Most men are naturally brave, just as most men also get scared."

At this point, Yank Levy gets in a few more words about guerrilla fighters. They deserve full quotation because they will give the uninitiated a glimpse into the task facing these partisans: "The good guerrilla fighter must out-smart, out-think the other fellow. He needs plenty of audacity, but audacity should only be used after he has studied every possibility of a get-away as carefully as he has studied the attack. We cannot afford to throw away guerrilla fighters. There are not too many of them. It is their job to badger the enemy, to wreak as much destruction as possible, and then to withdraw for the next attack."

Yank has coined some other phrases which tellingly describe the job and difficulties of guerrillas. "Invisibility is the guerrilla's fortress. The only one he can hope for . . . A guerrilla . . . must be a dim but sinister shadow, a mosquito in a darkened tent that stings first here, then there, his victims unable to trap him." These turns of phrase reveal that Levy can write as well as lecture, as well as fight.

He offers, in his book, prosaic, invaluable advice. You must not forget to use the leaves of trees; remember not to carry anything that reflects light. Learn how to walk so that you always lift your feet clear off the ground. Don't tip-toe; don't slide your feet along the ground. The side-crawl is useful; so is the belly-crawl. Move with the wind. Watch the animals in the field, so that you may get hints as to the environment. Carry silent equipment. Watch landscapes carefully. Rest whenever possible. Eat whenever you can. Even if you have eaten an hour ago, eat—for you may not get another chance to eat for days.

That's what Yank Levy teaches willing men of the United Nations. ©

SO MANY

So many stars in the infinite space—

So many worlds in the light of God's face.

So many storms ere the thunders shall cease—

So many paths to the portals of Peace.

So many years, so many tears—

Sighs and sorrows and pangs and prayers.

So many ships in the desolate night—

So many harbors, and only one Light.

So many creeds like the weeds in the sod—

So many temples, and only one God.

The Case of the Jew

By JACOB G. GROSSBERG

Jacob G. Grossberg, eminent member of the Chicago and Illinois Bar, organized and served as the first president of the American Jewish Congress movement in Chicago and the Middle West, and is also a former president of the Chicago Biro-bidjan organization.

THE EDITOR

IF THE "Case of the Jew" is to be discussed, it is not a subject for either attack or defense. "The Case of the Jew" is merely the case of humanity, with all its glories and all its frailties. The human individual—Jew or Gentile—is born amoral, neither good nor evil. He becomes one or the other, or partly both, because of example, environment, precept or vicissitude. These may perhaps all be grouped as environment. He is influenced by these from the moment of birth, and, later, though decreasingly, all through life.

Because a child's earliest environment is his home, and his earliest examples are his parents, the age-old notion persists that character is inherited: Like Father, Like Son. Modern thinkers are inclined to discard this notion. Whether or not they do, a lifetime of observation and thought on the subject has convinced me that character is not inherited, but acquired. Nations, peoples, groups—or, what not—are vast multiplications of individuals; and the same law holds true with them. Mass psychology, mass character, are not inherited—they are acquired. It follows that there are not inherently good, nor inherently evil peoples, any more than there are inherently good or evil individuals. They become one or the other, from force of circumstances: And, among those circumstances are democratic freedom and justice on the one hand, and the intellectual and moral oppression and goose-step on the other.

Proponents of the doctrine of heredity (or "inbornness") of character point to the instance of the celebrated Jukes family, which is said to have produced seven hundred criminals, descended from one criminal pair. But the logic of this was punctured by one writer, who asked: "If you could trace seven hundred German-speaking offspring to one German-speaking pair, would you argue that the German language was inherited?" We know that here in the United States descendants one or two generations removed from German immigrants, speak practically not a word of German. And, too, those who point to the Jukes tradition, overlook the fact that that family has also produced many outstandingly useful and honorable citizens.

How much bloodshed and oppression the world might have been spared, if its leaders had an honest understanding of this rule of the origin of both good and evil! Also, if they had not been infected with the absurdity of "Master Races" and "Inferior Races"! The Medes and the Persians, the Greeks and the Romans and others, all took turns at conceiving themselves to be "Master Races," only to sink into oblivion, or into secondary importance.

In this law of individual, as well as of group, evolution, the Jew reacts exactly like any other human being. Except as affected by ghettos and by persecution, a German Jew is just a German, a Russian Jew is just a Russian, and an American Jew is just an American. Before Hitler, a German Jew was so much a German that he carried with him an air of cockiness toward others, including fellow-Jews. And since the overthrow of the Czar and the extirpation of the Russian ghetto, the Jew in the U.S.S.R. is more and more indistinguishable from his Slav brethren. A foreign visitor to Moscow inquired of a member of the central governing Soviet, what proportion of that Soviet were Jews? He was told, after some hesitation, that really there was no way of knowing, because no one in Moscow concerned himself with any such question. Soviet Russia may have much to answer for, but it has made Anti-Semitism a crime, as essentially it is.

There is no "Case Against the Jew" either physically, mentally, or morally. It is true that the Jews are not a race, nor a nation, but a religion—as far as that religion goes. There is no Jewish entity unless it is the religious entity. And that entity is becoming more and more attenuated. The extreme Orthodox Jew differs as greatly from the extreme "Reformed" Jew, as Judaism, as a whole, differs from Christianity, as a whole. There is, perhaps, a more literal monotheism in the Jewish belief than in others. But both good and evil are as compatible with one form of faith as with another. Philanthropists and convicts are drawn from all religions. It is the individual who staunchly follows high principles on the one hand, or who weakly or corruptly follows criminal practices on the other. Neither wickedness nor heartlessness is any more general among Jews than among others. The Indiana Dillingers and the Missouri James Boys were not Jewish; and their exploits cannot be charged to the honest folk either of Indiana or of Missouri.

There are some heartless Jewish employers. There always were, and are, some heartless non-Jewish employers. Thomas Hood's "Song of The Shirt" was not written with Jews in mind. The Arkansas "Share-croppers" were not said to be victimized by Jewish land proprietors, although some of them may have been Jewish. And Lord Macaulay, in "Horatius At The Bridge," speaks of an Etruscan "Saius, whose eight hundred slaves sickened in Ilva's mines."

To generalize from individual instances of dereliction marks the irresponsible mind. If I should indulge in individual instances, I have in mind one former Jewish client who was a veritable Nathan the Wise, in point of nobility of character. He was, oddly enough, a dealer in wholesale liquor. He was probity itself. He had absolutely no hardness of soul. He would not take harsh legal measures to collect a debt. One customer, a "Gentile" saloon-keeper, had become indebted to him for an unusually large sum. My client said: "If I close him up he will be deprived of his only means of livelihood." This customer, incidentally, in the end paid his indebtedness in full, showing that my client was wise as well as warm-hearted. We all know instances of such Nathans among Jews and non-Jews. But, alas, we could wish that they were more numerous. And then there is the instance of the Jewish manufacturer who, some years ago, turned his entire business over to his employees.

It is said that Jews are more inclined than others to change their names. To the extent that this may be true, it is the intolerant or thoughtless non-Jew who is responsible. A Jew, by changing his name, has some escape from vicious or supercilious taunts, and some young people of my acquaintance were able to obtain desirable positions after making the change—something they could not do before. Employment agencies discourage young people with Jewish names, even though of superior attainments.

But the notion that change of names among Jews is general is much exaggerated. When one indulges in wise-cracking, he is likely to strain the truth. Perhaps the most frequent change is that from "Moses" to "Milton." But the scanning of a City directory will disclose columns and pages of "Levis," "Levys," "Levins," "Cohus," "Cohens," "Abrams," "Abrahams," "Isaacs," "Isaacsons," and of innumerable Jewish names which end in "Berg," "Stein," "Baum," "Heim," "Heimer," etc.

That Jews are not a race is easily demonstrated. Contrary to popular conception, they have no distinctive facial characteristics. The American-born Jew cannot be told from the mass, either physically or culturally. When one bears a tell-tale name like mine, the observer will imagine "Jewish traits," which would not have occurred to him otherwise. The dark Jews are not distinguishable from Southern Europeans, nor blond Jews from Northern Europeans. The "Jewish nose" is the invention of the comedian and of the Anti-Semite; in reality, it is the Greek, the German,

Hollywood—
 While politicians wrangle in Congress and Parliament, our hitherto silent Charlie gave voice to the wish of thousands of thinking citizens: A second front—NOW! Chaplin spoke over an NBC wire from Hollywood to a rally in Madison Square Garden, New York. "Russia is fighting with her back to the wall," he pleaded, "and that wall is the Allies' strongest defense. We cannot afford to lose Russia . . . What are we waiting for when she is in so desperate a plight? . . ." Coincidentally Elmer Davis' recently-issued pamphlet describes the people of Nazi-occupied countries as ready to welcome and expedite a second front wherever opened.

Hollywood producers! Here's your chance of a life-time! Let's have the most colossal, stupendous, fabulous film ever, depicting the gargantuan movement of millions of B.E.F. and A.E.F. crossing the Channel to Norway, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, France. An invincible armada! Visionary? Perhaps . . . but a goal to strive for. An irresistible morale-builder. And it conceivably would serve a second purpose—inoculate the Nazis with some of their own terror germs which they attempted to spread with "Sieg im Westen" and others of that bloody ilk.

A little Russian boy becomes the hit tune of American patriotism—Irving Berlin is the verse and chorus of columnists these days. He is pouring his life's breath into "This Is the Army" . . . and reaping millions for the Army Relief Fund. Besides the New York run, it will have a road tour, a broadcast deal calculated to net $10,000 a week, a movie version, and even a Decca album of the tunes. Berlin's goal is ten million dollars for the Fund!

Jack and Harry Warner deserve a bit of eulogizing. Their purchase price of a quarter million was considered magnanimous . . . then further increased it by agreeing to split the profits. But later reversed their decision . . . they would take NO profits from the film.

Lauding Berlin, Alexander Woolcott says, "He can neither read music nor transcribe it—he can only give birth to it."

Literally following in the footsteps of his father, a vaudeville dancer, Don Castle hoofs his first dance routine in "Star Spangled Rhythm."

Arnold Stang is one of our up-and-coming young actors. Had a part in "Seven Days Leave" and will be seen again in "They Got Me Covered."

Howie Mayer, lately come out of Chicago to chief the publicity department at Columbia, was describing the illness of his child. "It was measles," he said, "German measles. THAT should happen to a Mayer!"

Did-you-know:
 That Hitler mentioned Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" in his "Mein Kampf?" She treasures his venomous words as proof of the love and tolerance of her play.

That Irving Berlin's "Easter Parade" sold thirty million copies? Makes its first film appearance in "Holiday Inn."

That piano-playing Harry Rosenthal is very near F.D.R. in the National Encyclopedia of Biographies?

That Gertrude Niessen, singer, was born on the "high C's?"

That that speech in "Mrs. Miniver"—"This is a war of the people, of all the people, etc."—was written by the director, William Wyler?

New York (JPS) — Columbia, Princeton and Harvard Universities will each receive $30,000 from the estate of the late Mrs. Ludwig Stross of New York, it was announced here by the executors of the estate. Mrs. Stross, who died on July 18, left an estate valued at some $310,000.

YOUTH BAND TO GIVE CONCERT ON J. P. I. ROOF GARDEN

A 44 piece band made up exclusively of teen-age youngsters directed by Shirley Chalmers, will present the eighth of the series of open air concerts on the roof garden of the Jewish People's Institute, 3500 Douglas Boulevard, Tuesday evening, August 11.

The band, known as the Youth Band, is a product of the immediate neighborhood of the J. P. I. and is a pioneering effort to further music study at the Institute. The band is versatile and talented and includes in its repertoire spirited martial music and music of symphonic calibre.

"The Lady Vanishes," a mystery drama and product of the directing genius of Alfred Hitchcock, is the feature film to be shown on the open air roof garden of the Institute on Wednesday evening, August 12. The story develops, after various mysterious incidents, into an international spy plot and comes to a forceful action climax with a gun siege in a cross-continental train in a lonely mid-European forest.

NYASSA DOCKS 557 REFUGEES AIDED INTO U. S. BY J. D. C.

The Portuguese vessel Nyassa, 20 days out of Portugal, steamed into Baltimore harbor last Friday with 557 refugees on board whose passage had been arranged by the Joint Distribution Committee. The Nyassa is the 14th refugee boat to arrive in the Western Hemisphere since Pearl Harbor on which the J. D. C. bought up the passenger space to evacuate emigrants stranded in Europe.

Her arrival brought to 6,000 the number of persons the J. D. C. has aided to escape from the Old World since America went to war. The ages of the Nyassa passengers ranged from a pair of two-month-old twins to a 99-year-old woman.

Some of the passengers gave evidence of the harrowing hardships they had lived through in Europe when a bomber, evidently making a test flight, flew overhead as the boat was being moored. Some scurried to what they thought would be safety, others looked up at the bomber in transfixed fear. But they calmed down when they realized that they were on friendly shores.

The Nyassa left Lisbon, Portugal, on July 10, picking up at Casablanca, French Morocco, the bulk of her passengers, who had been transferred from Marseille in order to board the ship. The J. D. C., through its American representatives in Lisbon, had bought up all the passenger space on her. Transportation funds were advanced under the United States Treasury Department licenses.

By keeping transportation facilities available, the J. D. C. insures sailings from Europe at specific dates and thus prevents refugees from becoming stranded should their visas expire.

THE CASE OF THE JEW

the Russian, and the American nose. At the corner of State and Madison Streets in Chicago one could not possibly single out the Jews from among the passers-by.

I was once invited to address a Congregational church, and I spoke on the foregoing lines. I said to my hearers, "I was told that a number of Jewish people from the neighborhood have come to hear me, but I cannot pick them out in the audience," — and I could not.

I once sat on a platform in a public hall, waiting to be introduced as a speaker. Before me was a gathering of several hundred—understood to be all, or nearly all, Jewish. They were Americanized in their dress—youth and beardless. I turned to another prospective speaker beside me—not a Jew—and asked him, "If you did not know that this is an exclusively Jewish audience, would it have occurred to you that it is?" My friend, after a moment's reflection, said, "No, it would not." I have verified that phenomenon on numerous occasions since then.

So much for the nonsense of Jews being "A race." Nor are there any traits of character distinctively "Jewish." Occasionally, among themselves, Jewish people will deprecate the actions of one or another of their number, and say "It takes a Jew to do that." The unsophisticated or immature, on hearing such a remark, may take it literally. But the real feeling among Jews is that, as a matter of policy, a Jew should be better than his neighbor, to be considered as good. Also, they are fond of referring to a kind heart as a "Jewish heart," and to an exemplary mother as a "Jewish mother" or "mother in Israel."

I have said that it is not safe to generalize from one's individual experience. Making due allowances I will give my own for what it is worth. I hear, of course, of much discrimination against Jews, and even of outright hostility. An occasional chance acquaintance may stiffen on being told my name; and then I drop that acquaintance. Sometimes I run into "tolerance"—(i.e. prejudice become high-minded). But in the case of old acquaintances, my relations with non-Jews have been, and are, completely normal. "Some of my best friends" are non-Jews. Before Hitler's rise I had even forgotten to be "Jew-conscious." Whatever Jewish activities I had then espoused were rather in the interest of Jews mistreated abroad, than of Jews in general. I was formerly satisfied that in America, at least, Anti-Semitism was a negligible, if contemptible, quantity; that Anti-Semitism here did not amount to enough to put on the Jews the brand of "inferiority"—the brand was rather on their detractors. But when the Nazi plague came, some of its germs were carried over into the U. S. A. And then came the professional "Christian" who began to wave the banner of "Christianity." But, scratch an Anti-Semite and you find a Fascist; scratch a Fascist and you find a traitor to America.

Anti-Semitism is not only a crime but a fraud. There is no logical connection between Anti-Semitism and Fascism. Napoleon was the greatest of Fascists, yet, he removed at a stroke, the medieval disabilities from which the Jews had suffered. He destroyed the infamous Spanish Inquisition. Mussolini, godfather of modern Fascism, was free from Anti-Semitic taint, until he became a vassal of Hitler's. But the wily Adolf and his followers found that for the spread of their Nazi cult it was helpful to first deprive men of their reason: so, they proceeded to arouse their passions and hatreds. Shakespeare, in "Julius Caesar," has Mark Antony say: "Oh judgment! Thou art fled to brutish beasts, and men have lost their reason." Thus it is with Fascism.

Anti-Semitism is an instrument of would-be American Fuehrers. I had at one time an extended talk, also correspondence, with one of these worthies of local notoriety. He had previously made repeated bids for publicity by presenting himself (without an organization) as an "independent" or "liberal" candidate for mayor, for senator, and what not. After Hitler's advent he shed his "liberalism" overnight and now sought recognition on a Nazi anti-Semitic platform. In my talks with him he labored to show what a friend he had been of the Jews, that for instance, he had supported Governor Horner (a Jew) for election. A contributing factor to his change appeared to be that he had failed to receive an appointment from that Governor. There was not a word of justification, in my interviews with him, for his new pose; I thought he acted rather ashamed of his apostasy and was hopeful that he might recant. Later, however, I heard that he was attacking Jews in speeches at German Bund meetings. In disgust, I terminated my discussions.

I believe it was Bebel, the great German socialist who said, "Anti-Semitism is the socialism of fools." This should be corrected to say that "Anti-Semitism is the socialism of fools and scoundrels." And it has in all ages taken a bloody toll of the Jewish people and never more so than at the present time.

It is, in my judgment, a disservice to Jews, to urge them to retire upon themselves in their places of worship, etc. In the shadow of the wall of separatism grows the fungus of distrust and hatred.

The great Jewish community occupies merely its due and proportionate place in the American scheme of things; and all hostility directed to that is unholy, un-American, and, may I add, un-Christian!

The Tyrant Must Be Destroyed

"Americans who love justice and hate oppression will hail the solemn commemoration in Madison Square Garden as an expression of the determination of the Jewish people to make every sacrifice for victory over the Axis powers. Citizens, regardless of religious allegiance, will share in the sorrow of our Jewish fellow-citizens over the savagery of the Nazis against their helpless victims. The Nazis will not succeed in exterminating their victims any more than they will succeed in enslaving mankind. The American people not only sympathize with all victims of Nazi crimes but will hold the perpetrators of these crimes to strict accountability in a day of reckoning which will surely come."

—President Roosevelt

In the Wind

Thanks to the Jewish Welfare Board for listing the outstanding Jewish heroes in the present war . . . Corporal Meyer Levin, Lt.-Commander Solomon S. Isquith, Ensign Stanley Caplan and Ensign Ira Jeffrey are among them . . . Truly a list that every American should know by heart . . . Among the names mentioned for the Governorship of Puerto Rico is that of Dr. Herman B. Baruch, who is an expert on Caribbean questions though his name is not as well known as that of his brother, Bernard M. Baruch. . . .

This and That

What impelled the New York Daily News, largest-circulation daily tabloid in the country, to fume so against immigrants in a recent editorial? Such an un-American policy should not go unnoticed . . . Pierre van Paassen recently had to use a "striking" argument to convince an anti-Semite that racial and religious intolerance has no place in our democracy . . . Those Washington quarters that were most vociferous against Melvyn Douglas' OCD appointment some months ago are again complaining loudly now that he is taking time off (from a job for which he doesn't get paid) to make a picture . . . We wonder what they'll find to beef about when he enlists in the Air Corps, a step he's said to be contemplating very seriously . . . Hollywood, incidentally, is preparing a film on Thomas G. Masaryk, and is looking for an actor to impersonate the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who backed the Czechs' national aspirations in the Wilsonian days. . . .

World of Letters

That "Samson and Delilah" version of Elliot Paul's that we told you about quite some time ago is coming out this winter in a volume that will contain six such Biblical stories retold . . . To give you an idea what it'll be like, we may reveal that one chapter will be called "Queen Esther, the Beauty Contest Winner," and the whole book will be entitled "Gospel According to Hollywood" . . . Author Lewis Browne has spent a good part of the summer traveling from Army camp to Army camp, delivering lectures to the boys in training . . . Novelist Louis Golding also has been doing some Army camp lecturing . . . The high spot of his tour came at Fort Dix, where, after delivering his address, he took time out for some ping-pong—and beat all but one of his soldier opponents . . . Louis Nizer, the attorney and author, is preparing a tome dealing with the subject of what we should do with the Germans after the war . . . Novelist Franz Werfel, relates Leonard Lyons, recently was invited to attend a Refugee Dinner? . . . "What?" was the refugee author's shocked comment . . . "Are they eating them now." . . .

About People

Professor Albert Einstein's physicians have ordered him to take things very easy . . . Which means that organizations anxious to show the proper respect and consideration for the great scientist will not bother him with requests for testimonials, speeches and acceptance of membership on their committees . . . It was Edward G. Robinson who recited excerpts from Abraham Lincoln's writings at a Hollywood performance last week of "Lincoln Portrait," a new composition by Aaron Copland, one of this country's most distinguished modern composers . . . The Soviet picture "Inside Fighting Russia" has a scene showing a youth building a barricade . . . And that youth, we're told, is the son of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador at Washington . . . Robert Stolz, the refugee composer whose "Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time" may be heard on Broadway again next season, wants it known that it isn't his fault that the Nazis made one of his catchy tunes a storm-trooper song . . . They didn't ask his permission, and, indeed, are taking care not to credit the music to him, as he is persona non grata with them . . . Orchestra tycoon Meyer Davis, who has a profitable sideline in the bowling alley business, is branching out in a new field . . . He expects to become a Broadway producer this coming season . . . Swing composer Vernon Duke will be in the army before fall . . . And manager Lou Levy of the Andrew Sisters, who had been all set to join up and then was rejected because of a physical defect, is at this writing in a hospital having that defect removed. . . .

Weekly Giggle

From Picture Scoop, the new illustrated monthly, we bring you this tale, credited to comedian Danny Kaye . . . A German, it seems, had a terrible toothache, and decided to have the bothersome molar removed . . . So he went to one of Berlin's foremost dentists, who examined his mouth, took X-rays of the tooth, went into consultation with an assistant and then finally said to the patient: "We can extract that tooth, but it will cost you ten thousand dollars, American money" . . . The sufferer couldn't believe he had heard correctly . . . "Ten thousand dollars!" he cried . . . "Ten thousand dollars to pull one tooth? I never heard of such a thing!" The dentist shrugged, and pointed out: "My dear sir, you forget that we'll have to extract that tooth through your ear" . . . "Through my ear!" the patient exclaimed, now convinced that he had strayed into the psychopathic ward . . . "Why can't you pull it through my mouth?" . . . "This is Germany," the dentist replied stiffly . . . "Nobody is allowed to open his mouth here" . . . All of which reminds us of the story of Maxie Rosenbloom, the actor-boxer, tells of three men sitting on a park bench in Germany . . . One was reading the afternoon paper, and kept saying "Ts-ts-ts" to himself . . . The second man, his curiosity aroused, craned his neck to read the story, and pretty soon he too was saying "Ts-ts-ts" . . . So the third man got up to leave, saying: "If you two are going to discuss the war, I can't stay here" . . .

J. N. F. PALESTINIAN EXHIBIT DEPICTS LAND REDEMPTION

The epic of homecoming and of the reunion of a people with the land are the central themes of the Jewish National Fund exhibition now touring the cities, villages and army service clubs in Palestine, according to a description of the exhibit received by the United Palestine Appeal.

The exhibit is a graphic presentation of the principle milestones of 40 years of land redemption by the J. N. F., which has made of the Jewish return to Palestine one of the greatest back-to-the-land movements of modern times.

The transformation of the valley of Jezreel, illustrated at the exhibition, is the most striking example of land reclamation for which the J. N. F. provided the land and the Palestine Foundation Fund provided the funds for settlement. Both funds are combined in America in the United Palestine Appeal.

The land area under Jewish ownership, the exhibit points out, is still only 5.5% of the total area of the country, but 40 per cent of the Jewish land is held as a national trust by the J. N. F., which, the exhibit says, "thus provides one of the most valuable social and national safeguards for the nation's future."

Funds of the United Palestine Appeal are raised through the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees. Overseas Needs and Palestine.

YIVO HOLDS WRITING CONTEST FOR FOREIGN-BORN JEWS

The Yiddish Scientific Institute—Yivo, of New York City, which has been studying Jewish life for more than 16 years, now announces a contest for the best autobiography on the subject: "Why I left Europe and what I have accomplished in America."

All Jewish men and women not born in the United States or Canada may participate. Education, background, employment or party affiliation of the contestant are irrelevant. Twenty-five prizes are offered for the best autobiographies: First prize, $100; second prize, $70; third prize, $40; fourth prize, $30; and fifth and sixth prizes, $20 each; seventh to twenty-fifth prizes, each one volume of a Yivo publication. Manuscripts should be sent to the Yivo not later than September 1, 1942. It is of the first importance that the autobiographies be written with detail, accuracy and sincerity.

Speak Up for the Refugees

There is great sadness in the plight of the 450 men, women and children who, for more than three months, have been interned at Tiscornia, Cuba's Ellis Island. Having succeeded at last in escaping from the Nazi prisons that held them abroad, they continue to be confined, crowded, forgotten. How different their fate from the excitement aroused a few years ago when the steamer St. Louis, with some 900 passengers, tried vainly to land in some western hemisphere port with its refugee cargo and finally was turned away from Cuba too. Large sums of money were raised to ease their plight. Governmental intervention was sought. International excitement ran high.

It is true that the circumstances are entirely different; that the turmoil of war makes the discomforts and humiliations of a few hundred Jews a negligible item of news. But incapacity to feel moral resentment at their incarceration on our very borders is an indictment of our sympathies and of our appreciation of the purposes of this war.

Freedom on a distant horizon always beckons more attractively. Perhaps ten stranded refugees in Tibet might provoke us to surge up in righteous wrath to demand the solution of their problem. But right on the doorsteps of some 5,000,000 American Jews are 450 Jewish refugees. True, they are free from the hell of Europe. But would it not ease our own conscience as well as ease their plight if the appropriate Jewish organizations would speak up loudly, quickly at our State Department?

The Sacred Funnies

Don't be surprised if there is a faint resemblance to Dick Tracy in the features of Joseph as he is sold by his brothers in the Biblical story—as retold in "Picture Stories From the Bible." The story and the language of the sacred Scriptures are now "streamlined" to meet the mood of youngsters whose horizon is supposed to be set by the daily and Sunday "comic pages." A group of Jewish pedagogues, along with Protestant and Catholic representatives, is supposed to have approved of the idea of breaking down the resistance to absorption of Bible tales by sugarcoating them in the lively colors and techniques of the "funnies."

The first issue of the 64-page magazine for one dime tells all about Noah, Joseph, Moses, Saul, Ruth, Jonah and Esther. One of the "balloons" has a contemporary of Noah saying to his next-door neighbors: "Hear the latest, men? Crazy old Noah's got his relatives shut in the ark with him. What's wrong with him?" Whether this "folksy" way of telling the sacred folk tales of a people and of a civilization will achieve results is any man's opinion. In the meantime, the youngsters seem to be as afraid of these stories as they were of spinach before "Popeye" began selling it to them in the colored comics. The first edition is only 10,000 copies and the lad who has a week's spending money to lay on the newspaper counter for his reading matter still seems to prefer the genuine blood-and-thunder of Dick Tracy and Terry And The Pirates.

"Vote Christian!"

Johannes Steel, one of the first Christian newspapermen to escape his native Germany after Hitler came to power and now recognized as a leading American news analyst, revealed last week that the anti-Semites have banded together in New York to defeat Jewish candidates and pro-Administration nominees and to elect Fascist-minded aspirants for office. "Vote Christian" is the slogan which they have coined. "Don't vote for a Jew on any ticket. Remember the motto of Verdun: 'They Shall Not Pass!'"

It may seem incredible that these tactics should be pursued at a time when Los Angeles jails Robert Noble, Indianapolis tries William Dudley Pelley for criminal sedition and Washington indicts 28 for conspiracy. Because a rude, unexpected awakening will be far more bitter than a realistic facing of the facts, it is essential for Jews everywhere—in New York and in the rest of the country—to realize that the subversive forces have not been destroyed. They may have taken convenient cover under rocks but their verminous activity still continues. It is, therefore, important for Jews to bestir themselves in a positive way on behalf of the candidates for office who detest all for which these Bundists and Christian frontiers stand.

New York is not alone in being subject to the persistent perniciousness of these enemy forces in our midst. In the heart of Washington, where all the power of the F. B. I. and the Justice Department is concentrated, passengers on streetcars find anonymous throwaways with such inscriptions: "Who betrayed America to the empire of the British-Jewish yellow race? Rosenfeldt. We are victims of his Infantilism; he cannot stand alone."

From one end of the land to the other there are local and national candidates for office who have it in their power, by their own precept and by their conduct of public affairs, to crush these un-American forces or to perpetuate them. Jews, like all Americans, should remember that, as Secretary of State Hull says, a people is worthy of its freedom only as long as it is prepared to fight for it.

Discrimination in Hartford

Hartford, Conn., is experiencing a wartime boom. Airplane manufacture is not the least of the industries which have expanded enormously in the last few years. The Hartford Jewish Ledger noting the need for increased manpower in the city, charges that plants are rejecting Jewish workers. This would appear to apply to artisans as well as to clerical help.

Issues of this kind should not be lost on the editorial page of a local English-Jewish newspaper. Unfortunately, all too many Jewish leaders feel that the way to solve these problems is by not "offending" industrialists through calling attention publicly to their offenses. If, in these days of constricting resources of manpower, in these days which see hundreds of thousands of Jews arming in our country's defense, in these days when the President of the United States calls selection of workers on basis of creed or race sabotage of the national war effort—it is both un-American and un-

Jewish to permit a single Jew to be discriminated against for employment in Hartford, Los Angeles or any other center of war production.

But polite, private letters and secret conferences will not achieve the desired end. Dr. Malcolm MacLean, head of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices, has shown that publicity is an antitoxin for the noxious weed of discrimination in employment.

PURELY COMMENTARY

By PHILIP SLOMOVITZ

Watch the Rabble-Rousers

Don't let anything lead you into believing that rabble-rousing has come to an end—simply because a few spies have been arrested and some will get the death penalty. There is still a dangerous kind at large — and its rabble-rousing has not abated.

For some of them, Michigan is still a camping ground. It may not last long, and if the party leaders have their way some of the hot-mouthed fellows will soon be out of the way. In the meantime, however, they are still going strong.

Two excellent examples are Gerald L. K. Smith and Representative Clare Hoffman.

Smith and Rubber

Gerald L. K. Smith has a following, and his party, the Republicans, know it. That is why the leading figures in the party are so elated over the candidacy for U.S. Senator, in opposition to Smith, of Judge Homer Ferguson.

It is assumed that Judge Ferguson, a good campaigner and a popular judge, will make an easy target of Smith. But it would be well for Michigan voters not to be overconfident. Smith has a following. He has inherited quite a few boosters from Coughlin. That is not saying too much in a state that hatched anti-Semites but never elected them to office. But it is something to watch carefully.

Smith's stock-in-trade now is rubber. He promises enough tires for everybody. Also, he capitalizes on "mothers"—in every speech he speaks of his own mother as a martyr and as a symbol of something about to be abused, by an "unseen power." Of course, he constantly refers to his former mentor, Huey Long, at whose grave he shouted: "God make me a rabble-rouser."

He sums it up neatly: "I am not ashamed of the Bible, of Christ, or of my mother's patriotism"—and the impression he desires to make is that anyone opposing him is ashamed of all three or seeks to dynamite all three.

That's a thumb-nail sketch of Gerald L. K. Smith, who seeks a seat in the United States Senate and who we devoutly hope will be given a good thrashing—if not by Judge Ferguson, surely by Senator Prentiss M. Brown, who is up for re-election.

Dixie's O'Daniel

Now, let's take a glance at Senator W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas. In an article in the New Republic he is described as the leader of "a new, home-grown semi-fascist organization, the Christian American."

We met Senator O'Daniel at that famous Washington dinner sponsored by the American Palestine Committee. O'Daniel shared our table, at which also sat the distinguished Senator from Michigan, Arthur H. Vandenberg. He cracked a few Southern jokes, asked some questions about Palestine, appeared exceedingly friendly and was as courteous as a Southerner can be.

Then, we learned a few things about the Senator from Dixie. His band still appears on radio broadcasts directed by O'Daniel. Every member of the O'Daniel musical organization has been given some sort of job in Washington, and that circumstance has caused the singing campaigner to ease up on his attacks on the Administration. He had let off some steam during his first days in the Senate, then came in for some "hazing" and cut out the shenanigans.

He looked harmless to us. Maybe too much is made of him as a possible pro-fascist sympathizer in magazines like The New Republic and others. ©

Geneva (JPS)—That Italians residing in areas where Jewish slave laborers are working for Italy are being kind to the Jews by bringing them food and cigarettes has been revealed by the Regima Fascista, No. 1 anti-Semitic sheet in Italy. Roberto Farinacci, publisher of the paper, demands strict punishment of the Italians who aid the Jews.

POLISH-JEWISH SOLDIERS WELCOMED AT RECEPTION

New York, Aug. 3 (JTA)—A group of Polish-Jewish soldiers who saw action in the Libyan campaign were welcomed here this week at a reception arranged by the Federation of Polish Jews. They are part of a group of 300 Polish soldiers who arrived here this week from Russia and the Middle East.

Present at the reception were prominent Polish military leaders and the Polish consul-general in New York, Sylwin Strakacz. Both Mr. Strakacz and Benjamin Winter, president of the Federation, addressed the reception expressing the hope that victory will soon be achieved and that a free Poland with equality for all will be created.

JEWES IN SPORTS

By MORRIS WEINER

Oddities in Sports

Carl Hubbell, "old long pants," has pitched some 200 games for New York Giants since 1935 when he really was the Maestro of the Screwball . . . Old Man Hubbell is not the same hurler he used to be but in one thing he is still consistent . . . He insists on using Hank Danning as his receiver . . . Handsome Harry has caught 195 of these games the screwball wizard has pitched and would have had a perfect record but for the fact that he was on the hospital list on those five occasions . . . No other catcher in either the American or the National League has caught nearly half as many games of one pitcher.

Two Jewish track and field men who were played a queer trick by fate ten years ago at the try-outs for the 1932 Olympic Games are both head-coaches of a championship scholastic track team in New York. The two men, George Winston and Babe Scheuer, were products of N. Y. U.'s famous track mentor, Emil Von Elling. Winston specialized in the sprints while Scheuer, an all-America tackle in the days when the Violet was a national gridiron threat, went in for the shot-put and weight events. Winston cracked the national collegiate 70 yard record and Scheuer was one of the top-three men in the sixteen pound shot event. On the strength of their records both were sent out to the Coast for the national I-C-4-A outdoor track and field carnival. Both men scored brilliantly and were rated sure-fire bets for Olympic berths. On the eve of the Olympic try-outs Winston pulled a leg muscle and Scheuer sprained an ankle thereby eliminating themselves from further competition. They went their separate ways until today both are coaches in track and field at the same scholastic institution.

Mauri Rose, winner of the 1941 Indianapolis 500 Mile Memorial Day Race—the blue-ribbon event of the automobile speed racing world—and one of the nation's top-notch racing drivers, was rejected by the Army for a commission in the Motor Transport Division on the grounds that he "lacked sufficient experience."

Harry Mendl, impresario of the six day bike races has been invited by the Canadian Government to stage one of his very successful six day races in Montreal . . . Harry is not at all phased by the problem of securing eligible riders who are not in either the American or Canadian armed services . . . some of his best riders are over military age . . . However, the Canadian Government which invited

Harry to stage the races, has confiscated all bicycles and will not even release one for its own races . . . "A six day bike race without bikes," moans Harry . . . This will really be a sporting oddity if he can do it!

Have You Heard That

Dick Fishel, former all-America athlete at Syracuse University and now a well-known sports announcer for an Eastern Network, was 50 per cent responsible for staging that very successful Army Relief Program at the Polo Grounds recently . . . Between Fishel and his partner Bacharach they were able to offer the sport fans a lacrosse game, a tennis match starring Alice Marble, a four round exhibition bout starring Joe Louis and a track star named Cornelius Warmerdam . . . All this was in addition to the regular game of the Giants . . .

Joe Grossman, erstwhile footballer at Rutgers and one-time aspirant for big league baseball fame, is knocking 'em dead down under in Santiago, Chile . . . In addition to carrying on a very successful export and import business, the lad who holds the record for having thrown the longest forward pass in grid history, is doing his best to establish baseball on a strong footing in Chile . . . Jack's pass of 79 yards was completed for a touchdown some ten years ago in a game against Catholic University . . .

Strange as it seems, four of the five members of the original Celtics—the pride of the Irish in basketball some twenty years ago were Jewish . . . They were Nat Holman, Crown Prince of Basketball, Dave Banks, Barney Sedran and Joe Lapchich . . . Holman, by the way, once received $10,000 as his salary for playing basketball for one month with the Cleveland Rosenblooms—a top-flight pro quintet active a decade ago . . .

And—did you know that Baseball Umpire Dolly Stark who returned to the national pastime this season only to be forced out of active arbiting because of a recurrence of the same knee injury—used to be head basketball coach at Dartmouth College . . . Because of the friendship between Holman and Stark, a traditional rivalry grew up between the Beavers and the Indians . . . and not once in all their long history of play has Dartmouth been able to take C. C. N. Y. into camp . . .

The one man in radio cited by the Treasury Department as "doing more than his share" in selling stamps and bonds is Barry Wood, M. C. of the Hit Parade . . .

ILLINOIS SCRAP IRON DRIVE YIELDS 125,000 TONS IN FIRST WEEK

In the first week of the drive to salvage 125,000 tons of scrap iron and steel by September 1, homes and farms of Illinois have sent 25,000 tons to our hard pressed steel mills, Robert Ticken and George M. Eisenberg, co-chairmen of the salvage committee, Illinois State Council of Defense, reported to Governor Green.

The urgency of the need for scrap if our war production schedule is not to be endangered, has lead to the most comprehensive salvage setup yet worked out in the state, Ticken said. Active participation of all automobile, rubber, oil and farm implement dealers was assured at a recent meeting of representatives of those industries with Ticken, Eisenberg and officials of the W. P. B. As a result local dealers are now assisting county and community salvage.

The cooperation of the Illinois Civil Air Patrol was also enlisted to insure success of the test salvage harvest to be held in Delavan, Ill., on August 8. Flights are being made by more than 50 planes of groups of pilots from the Springfield and Peoria areas and over Tazewell, Mason and Logan counties. When they spot scrap piles, the location is noted and reported to the group commander, who in turn forwards it to salvage headquarters. Owners are then urged to start it on the way to mills.

INTERNATIONAL WORKERS PLAN TANK DRIVE FOR RED ARMY

The Jewish-American Section of the International Workers Order announced through Rubin Saltzman, national secretary, that it will immediately begin an intensive drive among its membership for funds to send ten tanks to the Soviet Union.

This decision is the answer to an appeal sent to world Jewry by the Second Jewish Anti-Fascist Congress of the Soviet Union for 1,000 tanks and 500 bombers as a special contribution by the Jewish people of all countries to the Red army's struggle against Hitlerism.

The action of the International Workers Order is the first response of a large American Jewish organization. Mr. Saltzman, in announcing the drive declared, however, that while the Order is proud of the fact that it was the first to start campaigns in answer to the appeal, it does not wish to be the only organization carrying out this duty to our Soviet allies. Every tank and bomber will be another guarantee that the Soviet people together with the American and British Allies will crush Hitlerism between a powerful Red army and an American and British Expeditionary force on the mainland of Europe.

FAST PROCAIMED BY RABBIS

New York, Aug. 4 (JPS) — Jews throughout the free world are being asked to join in a fast of sympathy with the victims of Hitler on Friday, August 14, it was announced here by the Union of Orthodox Rabbis, which reported that it had sent cables to all capitals urging the action.

The occasion will also be marked by the unusual step of blowing the shofar. The Union announced that it has already received a reply from the Chief Rabbinate of Palestine stating that Palestine Jewry would share in the fast.

Geneva (JPS)—The former huge Jewish community of Brest-Litovsk, which once numbered 40,000 Jews, has now been reduced to 18,000, all of whom are engaged in slave labor, according to the Boersen Zeitung of Berlin.

PUNISHMENT FOR THE NAZIS

Though there are no words for the cruelty of the Nazis against unarmed men and helpless women and children, many leaders of the United Nations have vowed to punish them for their wickedness, their special wickedness toward the Jews.

Here is what a few of these champions have said.

Cardinal Hinsley, who is head of the Catholic Church in England, publicly condemned the Nazi massacres of the Jews in a broadcast to the people of Europe. He appealed to his "fellow-Christians" on the continent to fight against the "black deeds of shame" which the Germans are committing. "Innocent blood cries out to Heaven for vengeance!" he said.

Dr. Schwartzbart of the Polish National Council made a broadcast to the Jews of Poland. He declared that "revenge will grow from the graves of those who have been forced to dig their own graves. The whole world sees the funeral processions passing through the ghettos. The day of victory and the day of reckoning approaches!"

A great meeting took place at Madison Square Garden in New York City. Twenty thousand people met there to express their horror at the Nazi mass-murder of Jews. The message sent to the meeting by Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain, said that he and Mr. Roosevelt had resolved to place punishment for these crimes among the chief purposes of the war. While our own President Roosevelt sent a message saying:

"Citizens, regardless of their religious faith, will share in the sorrow of our Jewish fellow citizens over the savagery of the Nazis against their helpless victims.

"The Nazis will not succeed in exterminating their victims, any more than they will succeed in enslaving mankind. The American people not only sympathize with all victims of Nazi crimes, but will hold the criminals to strict account and punish them in the day of reckoning which will surely come."

It is the duty of all people to see that such things shall never happen again.

OUR MAIL

I'm happy to print this letter from Diana Chizever, one of our "steadies." "Dear Miss Ish-Kishor, It's been a long time since I last wrote to you. Our school has a garden project. It's composed of flowers, no vegetables. I'm chairman for my room and so when I'm not at camp I have to take care of our room plot, and see that other people take care of it, too. So you see my days are quite full. I'm thirteen years old, have brown hair and brown eyes. My height is five feet 3½ inches and I weigh about 120 lbs. And I attend the Peterson School. I think you know all about me now. I hope that your summer is as enjoyable as mine. Your friend—Diana Chizever." Thank you very much, Diana, for those kind wishes. I like your letter and you, too! Goodness, you're taller than I am. What shall I do?

ALEXANDER AND THE AFRICANS

The Rabbis tell that Alexander of Macedonia, conqueror of the world, was always roaming the earth and traveling in search of new victories and marvels.

Once, the Talmud relates, he went very far into Africa and came to a land that none of his countrymen had ever seen before. The people were black and very gentle in their nature. They did not care much for gold because they had plenty of food and enough of everything they needed. But gold there was in plenty and Alexander marvelled to see the very pillars in the King's palace made solidly out of this precious metal.

The people received Alexander without fear, although the fame of his conquests had reached even their far country. The King invited him for a splendid banquet. The hall was beautifully adorned and the tables set with appetizing food. Alexander expected to enjoy the feast very much.

He was seated at the King's right hand and when the rest of the company had taken their seats, he found a loaf of gold before him. On his plate was a fish, exquisitely modelled in gold, to the last shining scale. A bowl of golden grapes and figs and pears stood near him. His goblet was filled to the brim with quicksilver.

The King began to eat and so did his guests. Alexander looked at his host with a questioning smile, and shrugged his shoulders at the golden food. The African King smiled too.

"If you wished for ordinary bread and wine and fruit, then why did you have to come to us?" he said. "Bread made from flour you could get in your own country. We did not think that that is what you came for."

Then he had Alexander served with real food and the Greek conqueror had to admit his admiration of the barbarian King's wisdom.

On the day after the feast, he wished to see how the King ruled his people. He was invited to sit beside him in the hall of judgment.

The King took his place on the throne and ordered the first case brought before him.

Two natives were led in and told to explain their quarrel.

"I bought a piece of land from this man," the first one said, "and when I began to dig in it, I found a treasure of gems and of golden ornaments. I brought them to him, but he refuses to take them from me."

"But why should I take this treasure from my neighbor?" the second man said. "He paid me for the land, and whatever he finds in it is his. Is not that the law?"

"But, your majesty," the first man protested, "I bought the land to plant fruit trees on it, and I paid the money that one pays for a field of good earth and nothing more. The price I paid does not include the treasure."

Alexander stared in astonishment from one man to the other and from them to the King. But from very curiosity he kept silent. The King nodded thoughtfully and said:

"You are both right. But what is to end this dispute? Let me think." In a moment, he said "I have it! Now," turning to the first man, "Have you any grown-up children?"

"Yes, your majesty. I have a son," "And have you any children?" the King asked the second man.

"A young daughter, your majesty."

"Then this is the answer," the King announced. "Let the two young people marry, and give them the treasure to start them in life."

That pleased the two disputants. They applauded the King and then embraced each other. The whole court applauded, too. Only Alexander remained quiet, shaking his head in astonishment.

"Is not that the way you would judge the case in your country?" the King asked him.

"In my country," replied Alexander, "it would be different. The man who discovered the treasure would hide it and try to keep it for himself. The man who sold the land would demand the treasure as his and would accuse the other in court. Then the King would have both men slain or cast into prison and would take the treasure as the property of the crown. That is what would happen."

The African looked at Alexander thoughtfully. "Do you have harvests in your country?" he asked finally.

"Yes, it is a fertile land." "Does the sun shine and the rain water the soil?"

"Yes, we have all that the fields need to yield their fruit."

"Perhaps you have animals, or birds building nests in the trees, or bees and butterflies hovering about your gardens?"

"We have indeed," said Alexander.

"Then, remarked the African King, "it must be for the sake of the innocent dumb animals and birds and butterflies that heaven gives the sunshine and rain for your harvests. If they were not with you, your land would be accused as it deserves to be, from what you tell me about the dealings of its men."

The Henry P. Sax 1933 perpetual trophy, which becomes the permanent property of the three times successive champion, has been won for the last two years by Gerson Gluck, who will make his third bid for the cup.

Milton Krueger offers his prize for low gross and Archie Karasik will award his trophy for low net.

Members representing many clubs in the city will participate. Nate Karasik, champion of Twin Orchard and 1934 winner of the Sax trophy, was runner-up in 1941.

"Men of good-will who are moved by humanitarian considerations arise en masse to protest against the crimes committed against Jewish people by the worst tyrant the world has ever produced.

"American labor joins with all other liberty-loving people in voicing our protest against it and we join with them in a firm determination that the war against Hitler and all he represents must be carried forward until he is decisively defeated and he is compelled to pay the penalty. Labor will join with others in demanding that the United Nations shall firmly resolve and agree at the peace convention that racial minorities must be protected, their rights be guaranteed and their right to live on equal terms with others be established."

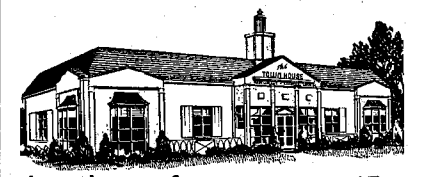

—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor

New York (JPS)—Dr. George Moses Price, founder and director of the Union Health Center—the medical clinic of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union—and author of several books on industrial hygiene and public health, died here at the age of 78.

Under his direction, many improvements in working conditions were made and a sickness insurance system for union members was established.

FINAL 4 ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS
GIVEN AT RAVINIA THIS WEEK

The week of August 6 brings to an end the orchestral portion of the 1942 Ravinia Festival and ushers in the seventh week series of chamber music concerts by the Budapest String Quartet and distinguished assisting artists.

Pierre Monteux, who was last season's conductor in the final week, will again wield the baton for the last four concerts by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at the North Shore Park. Mr. Monteux, veteran conductor of several famous European and American orchestras, now stationed at San Francisco, has arranged programs combining standard and contemporary works, along with works by composers of his native France.

For Thursday evening, August 6, his novelty will be the Suite from "The Incredible Flutist" by the American composer Walter Piston, on a program including music by Bach, Haydn and Tschaikowsky.

Edwin Stringham is another American to be represented on Saturday's program with his Nocturne No. 1, Stravinsky's suite from the ballet "Petrouchka" will share the evening with the Brahms First Symphony and Handel's "Water Music."

The final symphonic concert of the season will take place on Sunday afternoon, August 9, and will feature music by Brahms, Saint-Saens, Ravel, Moussorgsky and Chabrier.

DR. C. E. ERICKSON OF N. U.
URGES U. S. RE-EDUCATE NAZIS

Northwestern University Associate Professor Clifford E. Erickson urged, in an address to the summer session last Tuesday, that this country develop an "intellectual occupation force" to take over the task of re-educating the German people after the war.

"We should develop a trained corps of social scientists to take over conquered territory in the wake of our advancing troops and inaugurate a 30-year program to undo the negative education Hitler has inflicted on Germany, France and other countries," Dr. Erickson asserted. He said that there are two alternatives in dealing with the German people. "We must either exterminate the Germans or develop for them a program of re-education."

Dr. Erickson added that if we wish to keep peace we must do more than impose a military occupation on Germany for two or three years. "We must educate an entire new generation in the democratic way of life. Hitler has used the educational system to indoctrinate the German people with false ideals, and it will require the combined work of economists, and philosophers to develop an ideology which will prevent another war in the next generation."

He further declared that because of the present outlook of the Nazi youth it may be necessary to weed out automatically such Nazi doctrines as Aryan race supremacy.

JEWISH LABOR LEADERS REPLY TO PLEA OF MOSCOW JEWISH ANTI-FASCISTS

Two hundred and seven Jewish trade unionists, officials of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations trade union bodies, issued a joint statement calling upon the Jews of America to help raise funds for tanks and bombers for the Russian army, in response to a recent appeal from the Jewish Anti-Fascist Committee in the Soviet Union which called upon the Jews of the world to help provide 1,000 tanks and 500 bombers for the Russian army.

The statement declared in part, "We are heart and soul behind our President and the agreement of our government to open a Second Front in Europe and we are eager to participate ourselves in a Second Front NOW and at the same time to give the stalwart Red Army the tanks and bombers that it needs for our common defense and our common free future."

Among the 207 officials who signed the statement were the following from Chicago: A. Arenstein, member of the executive board of the Cigar Makers Union, A. F. L.; William Birenbaum, vice-president of the Cigar Makers Union; M. D. Bell, recording secretary of the Chicago Hebrew Typographical Union; Abe Feinglass, vice-president of the International Fur and Leather Workers Union, C. I. O.; Sam Gotfried, business agent for the Bakers Union; Irving Krane, organizer for the State, County and Municipal Workers of America; B. Levkovitch, financial secretary of the Chicago Hebrew Typographical Union; David Levy, president of the State, County and Municipal Workers of America, C.I.O.; Jack Spiegel, organizer for the United Shoe Workers of America, C. I. O.; Ben Sloan, executive board member of the Cigar Makers Union, A. F. L.; and Sam Schaps, secretary of the International Fur and Leather Workers Union, C. I. O.

Weizmann May Solve Rubber Problem--Time

New York, Aug. 3 (JPS) — The candidate of influential Time Magazine for "the man to whom the U. S. could look for a way out of the Rubber Scandal" is Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, according to its August 3 issue.

Saying that Dr. Weizmann had met in Washington with "Presidential Adviser Judge Samuel I. Rosenman," Time states: "Reports were that Dr. Weizmann, who did not claim to know all the facts about synthetic rubber, nevertheless knew more of them than any other one man, perhaps could set the record straight." The magazine suggests, in view of Dr. Weizmann's chemical achievements in the last war that "able, inventive Chaim Weizmann" would be able, through his current synthetic rubber experiments, to solve one of America's prime war problems.

Report on Jewish Youth Life in Vichy France

Geneva, Aug. 3 (JPS)—The life of Jewish youth in unoccupied France is more difficult than ever before, but at the same time is becoming more unified, reports indicate.

A special "youth action," created within the framework of the "Union Generale des Israelites de France," is co-ordinating all the Jewish youth movements, including the Jewish boy scouts and the various Zionist groups. There are, according to the latest figures, some 8,000 Jewish boys and girls in the youth section. M. Gamzon, a former captain in the French Army, holder of the Croix de Guerre and chief of the "Eclaireurs Israelites de France," heads the youth section.

The aim of the youth unit is to aid the boys and girls in a spiritual and professional orientation in a France suddenly turned anti-Semitic. Many Jewish intellectuals, former government officials, teachers and writers, who lost their jobs as anti-Jewish legislation grew more severe, have been placed at the head of these youth educational activities. The "Consistoire Israelite," which has kept its special functions as spiritual and religious central body for the Jews in spite of the creation of the "Union," is also giving its entire support to the work of the youth section.

The difficulties in the way of an effective educational program are great and are accentuated by the fact that the youths can be classified into three groups: (1) those belonging to or formed by the young Alsations and Lorraines (French-assimilated but attached to religious Judaism); (2) those belonging to the "French Israelites" (entirely assimilated and having a vague connection with Judaism) and (3) young Jews of foreign stock.

Another great hardship is the paucity of Jewish educational handbooks. It is impossible to publish books at this time. There are no Jewish printing establishments in France any more and the stocks of Jewish books which existed in Paris and in libraries of other cities as well as in the libraries belonging to the Alliance Israelites and the Seminaries have disappeared. The Zionists have been authorized to publish handbooks in Hebrew.

Listed "Missing in Action", is Safe After Two Months of Sea Adventures

New York, Aug. 4 (JPS) — The happy adventure of Lieutenant William Lipsett of the U. S. Navy, first reported as missing in action "somewhere in the Philippines," and then picked up with four other American naval officers after two months of sailing in a flimsy boat, is the feature of the latest Jewish Welfare Board Honor Roll, which pays tribute to Jewish heroes in the present conflict.

Lieutenant Lipsett of New Bedford, Mass., had been reunited with his companions on the Island of Cebu after having been separated at Bataan and Corregidor. Leaving for Cebu on a secret mission, they accomplished their job and left the island a few moments before the Japs arrived. They fled in a native sailing boat, 70 feet long and "flimsy as a canoe." It took them 20 days to reach open sea. Then they sailed about for 11 days without sighting land. Running out of food and water, using ingenious implements, including an alarm clock, a portable radio and a page from a schoolbook atlas, the five men sighted land on May 10. New Guinea natives chased them away. Finally they were picked up and given a "hitch" to Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Lipsett, William's parents, had been notified on July 3 that their son was missing in action. "I almost collapsed with joy when I heard the welcome news," his mother said.

Other Jewish heroes mentioned in the latest JWB dispatch are: Edward H. Pearlman, quartermaster in the merchant marine, of Quincy, Mass., who went down with his ship which was torpedoed in Caribbean waters; Captain

Dan Golenternek, Army Medical Corps, of Tyler, Texas, reported missing in action in the Philippines; Lieutenant Harry Katz, of Corsicana, Texas, also missing in the Philippines.

Herman Davis, 3rd Class Pharmacist's Mate of the U. S. Navy, of Elizabeth, N. J., has been reported to be a Jap prisoner. Sergeant Robert Clifford of the Army Air Corps and Perth Amboy, N. J., has received the Order of the Purple Heart for wounds received while fighting in Hawaii during the Pearl Harbor attack.

U. S. Lend-Lease Head Promises Aid to Russia

London, Aug. 4 (JTA)—A promise that Polish refugees in Russia—among whom are many Jews—will continue to receive food, clothing and medicine on a lend-lease basis from the United States has been given to Jan Stanczyk, Polish Minister of Social Welfare by Edward Stettinius, American Lend-Lease administrator, it was announced here this week in Dziennik Polski, official organ of the Polish Government-in-Exile.

In the course of the conference between Minister Stanczyk and Mr. Stettinius the Polish official informed the Lend-Lease administrator concerning the situation of the Polish refugees in Russia and the Middle East and discussed the possibilities of aiding these refugees, the Polish newspaper stated.

Say Palestine Jews No Chance to Fight

New York, Aug. 4 (JPS)—The serious accusation that three Jewish companies in United Nations armies are armed but get no chance to fight has been leveled by Arthur Hale over the "Confidentially Yours" radio program.

"There are," he said, "some 16,000 Jews who have enlisted to fight (in Palestine) and are on active duty in the various services. Several thousand are in the infantry, but they haven't been formed into battalions or brigades. They are isolated units. "Moreover," he stated, "instead of being permitted to come face to face with the Axis enemy, these infantry companies have been assigned to guard duty, and to the present day they are not receiving full military training."

The commentator concluded that "the situation is having a discouraging effect on the efforts of Jewish authorities in their recruiting campaign. The young men want to fight, and not simply to parade in uniform."

Washington, Aug. 4 (JPS)—The Soviet Embassy has announced the receipt of $2,000 from the Jewish Committee for Aid to Russia and other Democratic Countries of Montevideo, Uruguay. The amount is being turned over to the Soviet Red Cross.

In a letter from Jaime Galperin, President of the Uruguyan Committee, he wrote: "The Jewish people of Uruguay, regardless of class, with understanding and a high spirit of sacrifice have responded to the call of the Jewish people of the Soviet Union who are defending the most sublime ideals of liberty and of human civilization.

Nye Bill Aids Anti-Jewish Publications

Washington, Aug. 3 (JTA)—An attempt by Social Justice, X-Ray and other Jew-baiting publications to make a comeback after the war was seen this week in a bill introduced by Senator Gerald P. Nye, Democrat of North Dakota. Nye was one of the Senate's leading isolationists before Pearl Harbor.

The bill, which was referred to the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, would "relieve newspapers and periodical publications which have voluntarily suspended publication for the duration of the war from payment of second-class mailing fees upon resumption of publication." Legally, it might be argued that Social Justice and X-Ray "voluntarily" suspended publication, although both were facing hearings which would probably have resulted in permanent revocation of their mailing privileges. A spokesman for the post office department indicated that it would probably fight any such contention.

At Senator Nye's office, it was said that the bill was suggested by an unspecified North Dakota publication, but that it would probably have a "wider application." The post office department pointed out that many legitimate publications, such as trade organs for industries abolished by the war effort, have also suspended.

Polish-Jewish Leader Asks Aid for Russians

Kuibyshev, Aug. 3 (WNS)—Urgently appealing to world Jewry for funds to purchase military supplies and ammunition for the Red Army, a well-known Polish Jewish leader now residing in the Soviet Union stressed the need for aiding the Soviet while withholding his name for fear of reprisals directed at his family still in Nazi-occupied Poland.

"I have seen our pogrom-racked Jewish brothers and sisters and our tortured and murdered children," he declared in his appeal. "Rivers of bloods are being shed by our brother Jews in the Red Army and by other Russians. More tanks, more bombers, more ammunition is needed. I appeal to you: Collect the necessary funds. Let your work be on a par with the great struggle for life against the forces of death—for freedom against the forces of slavery."

Addressing his message to "friends of the World Jewish Congress, and the American Jewish Congress, dear colleagues and friends of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Jews of Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, my friends in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv and my friends in Capetown," the unnamed Polish-Jewish leader observed: "You know me well, I am neither a Soviet citizen nor a Communist. I am a Polish Jew who believes in and hopes for a free Poland."

Meanwhile, the Soviet government awarded the Order of the Red Star to several Jewish engineers for their work in increasing production of fighter planes and bombers. Among those who received the award were Arson, Miller, Lewitin, Lewin, Schweitzer and Gundelan.

Dr. Wise Repudiates Greenspan as "Burden"

New York, Aug. 3 (JPS)—Words of hot scorn were poured upon Benjamin Greenspan, former magistrate, by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, who charged Mr. Greenspan with misuse of the name of the American Jewish Congress in coming to the defense of William Griffin, publisher of the New York Enquirer, one of 28 indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for alleged conspiracy to undermine the morale of the armed forces.

In his statement, which was widely disseminated in the Hearst press, Mr. Greenspan had said he was speaking in the name of the Jews in championing Griffin as a friend of the Jews and an enemy of Hitlerism.

"It is true," said Dr. Wise, "I regret to admit, that Mr. Greenspan is the temporary chairman of a district of the American Jewish Congress in Washington Heights, but I have no doubt that at the earliest moment that district will force itself from the burden of Mr. Greenspan's chairmanship.

"The case of Mr. Griffin will be judged by a court of law and not by Mr. Greenspan, but I cannot forbear for one moment to express my unmeasured abhorrence of Mr. Greenspan for dragging in the name of the American Jewish Congress into a case associated not only with those who are charged with being enemies of the Republic, but who are indubitably anti-Semites of the basest order."

450 REFUGEES INTERNED IN CUBA

Pelley's Anti-Semitism Aired at Seditious Trial

Indianapolis, Aug. 4 (JPS) — An anti-Semite's holiday is being celebrated at Indianapolis as counsels for and against William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt founder and hate-mongering publisher, on trial for criminal sedition, recite from the voluminous anti-Jewish literature that has appeared from Pelley since he first saw himself as America's Hitler.

In the early days of testimony, extensive excerpts were read from the anti-Semite's autobiography, in which, among other things, he had suggested the segregation of Jews in America in a single town in each state and urged the ousting from office of "the Sephardic Jew, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

It is typical of the atmosphere which surrounds the Pelley trial that his chief counsel should be Floyd Christian, remembered here as attorney for Ku Klux Klan leader D. C. Stephenson, now serving a life sentence for murder. It was ironic that in impanelling the jury, Christian kept asking whether the prospective jurors harbored any "religious prejudice."

Whether a man listened to Walter Winchell, radio commentator and columnist, became one of the tests of a juror's ability to serve, as Christian inquired whether the men followed Winchell or other radio commentators. Judge Robert C. Baltzell, who has injected humorous notes at various stages of the trial, asked whether the question also applied to "Lum and Abner," another folksy radio feature.

The aim of Pelley's counsel is to show that their client's views do not constitute criminal sedition, as they were held by a large body of Americans, including Congressmen. Oscar R. Ewing, special Federal prosecutor in the case, has turned tables on the Pelley attorneys by calling a series of "typical Americans" to show that Pelley's vicious libels against the Jews, against Government officials and others were not shared by the majority of Americans. Two Indiana salesmen were called to the stand and denied that only Jews and refugees condemned Hitler, saying that all normal Americans detested what he had done in Germany and the horror he had brought on the whole world.

New York (JPS) — Anti-Semites of various stripes, from the German American Bund to the Christian Front, are engaged in a vigorous campaign to defeat pro-Administration candidates coming up for election this fall and are using such slogans as "Vote Christian," it was asserted here by Johannes Steel, news analyst and radio commentator.

Held for Three Month on Cuba's "Ellis Island"—Internees Appeal for Freedom

New York, Aug. 3 (JPS) — Three months after landing in Cuba on the S. S. San Thome, 450 Jewish refugees are still interned at Tiscornia, the Cuban Ellis Island, "without comfort, in overcrowded quarters, inadequately nourished, exploited by individuals who sense an opportunity to enrich themselves," it is revealed by Aufbau, German Jewish weekly.

The paper also discloses that Paul van Zeeland, former Belgian Prime Minister, and chairman of the Coordinating Foundation for Refugees, visited the internees a month ago and brought a spark of hope to the Jewish immigrants that they would soon be released, especially since van Zeeland met with President Batista. But they are still "confined there, with their visas in order, their deposits paid and an often repeated promise of freedom which thus far has remained unfulfilled."

A pathetic appeal in the form of a manifesto was drawn up by the internees on the 4th of July, following a parade held in Havana to mark America's anniversary of independence. It read in part:

"The call for liberty and independence was heard in our place of detention. Freedom being the prize for which we abandoned everything, we feel it our duty to join in this day's festivities. Or are we not worthy of that participation? . . . We, deported and imprisoned by Hitler and his Gauleiters in the notorious concentration camps of Dachau, Vernet, Gurs, Ferramonti, Tarsia for our love of liberty and our religion? . . . We, the persecuted and hunted whose names figure on the Gestapo's black lists? We, the exiles, who volunteered in the French foreign regiments, running the risk of being executed, if captured by our former countrymen? . . . Are these 450 victims of tyranny really unworthy of participating in the Day of Liberty as free men?"

Raise Jewish Children As Own-Get Jail Term

London, Aug. 3 (JPS) — The remarkable tale of how five German peasant women from villages in the Koenigsberg district brought up eight small Jewish children as their own and were rewarded by the Nazis with long prison terms has been published by the Koenigsberg Zeitung.

The women are Johanna Kleger, Ernestina Schmidl, Sofia Metzger, Frieda Krantz and Frieda Seifert. They received sentences ranging from 42 months to six years for their acts of kindness.

The children belonged to their Jewish neighbors who had been deported to Poland for forced labor. To save the children from the same fate, the women took in the youngsters and said they were their own. The subterfuge lasted 18 months until the Gestapo discovered the "crime" and arrested the women.

The first clue came to the Gestapo when they intercepted a letter written by the women to the real parents, advising them of the well-being of their children. The women also sent to their Jewish friends food packages, which in a devious manner led to the discovery of what the Nazi court and the Koenigsberg Zeitung denounced as a "betrayal of Nazi Socialism."

J.W.B. Aids U.S. Jap War Prisoners

New York, Aug. 2 (JTA) — A shipment of Bibles, prayer books, religious articles and books for American prisoners of war of the Jewish faith held by the Japanese has been made by the National Jewish Welfare Board, through arrangements with the War Prisoners Aid of the World Committee of YMCA's, of Geneva, Switzerland, it was announced this week by Louis Kraft, executive director of the Board.

The materials provided by the Board, Mr. Kraft said, form part of a larger shipment of materials for American war prisoners of the three major religious faiths who are now being held in five Japanese prison camps.

The Jewish religious and ritual materials provided by the Board include Sefer Torahs, abridged prayer books and bibles, phylacteries, prayer shawls, full text bibles in both English and Hebrew, and other synagogue appurtenances, and Jewish histories and literary works. In all, 30 items are included. A Sefer Torah is included for each of the five prison camps. Aside from the religious articles, the materials in the five shipments which have been contributed by groups from all faiths include a library, phonographs, musical instruments, athletic goods, indoor games, theatrical outfits, and school supplies.

Doubtful If Food Can Reach Ghettos

Montreal, Aug. 3 (JPS) — Saying that "it is a cruel thing to encourage hundreds of thousands of relatives in the United States and England" with news reports that food shipments are to go to the ghettos of Axis-occupied countries through the International Red Cross, Saul Hayes, Executive Director of the United Jewish Refugee and War Relief Agencies of Canada, declared here that on the basis of conferences he held with representatives of "two internationally known organizations" he did not believe the project possible.

Mr. Hayes' views were contained in a letter to the Canadian Jewish Chronicle in which he said that "the difficulties in the main can be translated in the phrase, 'You Can't Do Business With Hitler.'" The success of the undertaking does not depend on the Red Cross or on the British government, he said, but "upon the German authorities keeping inviolate a promise to allow the food to reach its destination. The history of the past number of years has painfully disclosed to the democracies that the promises which emanate from Naziland are about the equivalent of the old adage that a verbal promise isn't worth the paper it's written on . . . the real and insuperable difficulty will be in the acceptance of assurances from Germany."

According to Mr. Hayes, his organization had been considering a "test shipment." He added that "until there are assurances from authentic and neutral sources that food and other supplies are actually going to the beneficiaries and not to be diverted to the Nazi economy, such a scheme will be inoperative."

Lists of Jews in Gov't Found on Seized Aliens

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (JPS) — Lists of Jews serving in government positions were found on aliens, stated to be members of the German-American Bund or sympathizers, arrested here by F.B.I. agents, it was reported by the local director of F.B.I. More than fifty homes of aliens were entered in the raid, part of a nation-wide series of roundups to seize subversive agents.

It was also disclosed that among a series of charts and maps picked up in the raids was one showing the number of Jews and Germans in every country of the world.
